Cancer patients with metastatic melanoma, of which there are many, are sensitive to the treatment of these diseases. In the present study, we evaluated the ability of melanoma patients to complete treatment of metastatic melanoma with a high-intensity laser.

METHODS

The study was approved by the Institutional Review Board of the University of Tokyo Health University. The study was conducted in accordance with the guidelines of the Institutional Review Board of the University of Tokyo Health University.

RESULTS

The melanoma patients at the top of the list of melanoma patients were among the selected patients with metastatic melanoma. For our study, we included all patients with metastatic melanoma (Table 1).

RESULTS

When we included patients with metastatic melanoma, we found that 36

DISCUSSION

Medications used in the present study were not effective in the treatment of metastatic melanoma (Table 1).

The findings of the present study suggest that the use of weak lasers for the treatment of metastatic melanoma is not effective in the treatment of melanoma. However, lasers are not only effective in the treatment of metastatic melanoma, but with their high intensity and low cost.
