I have a question. I have to admit that the original R9 270 3.5-in. bearing is a bit of a mystery to me, and I don't think it fits in with the current R9 270 3.5-in. diameter tolerances. There are a number of different designs of bearing, of which I have a great deal of knowledge. Is there a way to vector the rattle from the original to the next bearing and to the next by using a different bearing shape and/or a different surface type? I have reviewed an old R9 270 bearing, and while it was a good design, I think the R9 270 was a bit too small for my needs. Is the R9 270 a good choice for a large-capacity, single-stroke toolbox?
